

Avengers 101: How to Defeat Dr. Doom

Peter Quill | Homework 2 | Fictional submission

1. Is that actually Doom?

I check his voice against a separate archive recording and look for the Doombot serial-number sticker. While checking, we wait behind cover instead of attacking. If the sticker says DO NOT MICROWAVE, that is probably relevant.

2. Assemble a team

Gamora leads negotiations, Rocket operates sensors, and Groot escorts civilians. We coordinate on channel seven. I have named the operation Awesome Mix: Administrative Edition.

3. Protect the public

Use the east walkway to the museum courtyard, with Groot helping anyone who needs step-free transport or a buddy. I will provide motivational music, whether requested or not.

4. The dramatic shield

An imaginary Disco Prism converts the shield into a dance-floor spotlight. It only works while Doom taps his foot; we test it on a toy shield in an empty room first. Peer review will be conducted by a disco ball.

5. The after-action meeting

The shield switched off: our meter read zero and the recording shows it disappearing. Next time we will label every switch before launch. This mission was flawless, especially the parts nobody recorded.
